

Take some time to congratulate yourself for the positive steps you've taken in grief. Recognize all your successes, big and small. Acknowledge the times you've pushed yourself to do something difficult, scary, or painful. And remember, only compare yourself to where you started in grief. You may fill this page up in one sitting or add to it over time.